Weather: Rainy

Water temperature: 17.9°C

These photos show the condition of abalone after being transferred to different tanks. Since they prefer dark places, shelters need to be installed, but since they are few in number a black tarp has been put over one of the tanks and the abalones gather in the corner. Overcrowding has been eliminated, and, although hesitantly, the abalone are sticking out their horns (tentacles) actively, so they seem to be comfortable.
