

<Marine Organism Rearing Log>

9 AM, May 22, 2023

Weather: Sunny

Water temperature: 18.3°C

Last week, we mentioned in our log that the flounder is a flesh-eating fish, so that the frequency of feeding can be reduced. The flounders for the test rearing were about the size of a postcard when they first arrived at the power station. They are now about 20 to 25 centimeters long and can survive for about a week without food once in a while.
